D-Day vets who fought through 'fires of hell' honored

"France will never forget," French President Emmanuel Macron told vets at Thursday's ceremony.

France will never forget the sacrifice of the Allied troops who liberated it from Nazi Germany, President Emmanuel Macron said on Thursday, the 75th anniversary of the D-Day operation that helped bring World War II to an end.

President Donald Trump and British Prime Minister Theresa May joined Macron at separate ceremonies along a 50-mile stretch of Normandy coastline, where more than 150,000 soldiers landed on June 6, 1944, under a hail of German fire.

"We know what we owe to you, our veterans: our freedom. On behalf of my country, I want to say, 'Thank you,'" Macron told several dozen American D-Day combatants at a U.S. war cemetery overlooking Omaha Beach, one of five landing spots in Normandy.

"France will never forget."

Macron awarded the Legion d'honneur, France's highest award for merit, to five U.S. veterans and embraced each man warmly.

The Normandy landings were months in the planning and were kept secret from Hitler and his forces despite a huge trans-Atlantic mobilization of industry and manpower.

Under the cover of darkness, thousands of Allied paratroopers jumped behind Germany's coastal defenses. Then, as day broke, warships pounded German positions before hundreds of landing craft disgorged the infantry troops under a barrage of machine-gun fire and artillery.

Some veterans say the sea and sand turned red with blood during the operation. Dozens of U.S. rangers were felled by German machine-guns as they scaled the cliffs rising up from Omaha Beach to Colleville-sur-Mer, where the U.S. cemetery lies.

"You are among the very greatest Americans who will ever live," Trump said in his address, turning to the surviving veterans. "You are the pride of our nation, you are the glory of our republic and we thank you from the bottom of our hearts.

"These men moved through the fires of hell," he said. "They came here and saved freedom, and then they went home and showed us all what freedom is about."

People applauded as one of the veterans, 94-year-old Private Russell Pickett, rose shakily to his feet. "Tough guy," Trump said, before Macron helped lower Pickett back into his seat.

"SPECIAL GENERATION"
The Normandy landings remain the largest-ever amphibious invasion and paved the way for Western Europe's liberation.

Inaugurating a memorial to the 22,000 soldiers under British command who were killed on June 6, 1944, and in the ensuing battle for Normandy, British Prime Minister Theresa May saluted the bravery of the soldiers, many of whom were still boys when they waded ashore as shells screamed overhead.

"It's almost impossible to grasp the raw courage it must have taken that day to leap from landing craft and into the surf despite the fury of battle," May told a small gathering that included Macron and veterans, their uniforms laden with medals.

"These young men belonged to a very special generation ... whose incomparable spirit shaped our post-war world," she said.

The devastation wrought by two world wars in the first half of the 20th century fostered a decades-long era of cooperation between European capitals determined to protect their hard-fought peace, giving rise to what is now the European Union. REUTERS

Obamas jump into podcast biz with Spotify partnership

2 Former President Barack Obama and his wife Michelle entered the booming podcast business on Thursday, announcing a multi-year partnership with streaming service Spotify to produce a series of exclusive podcasts. Under the partnership, the Obamas will "develop, produce and lend their voices" to select podcasts that will be distributed worldwide, Spotify and the Obamas' production company, Higher Ground, said in a joint statement. The announcement follows a multi-year agreement between Higher Ground and Netflix that was announced in 2018 in which the former president and former first lady will produce films, documentaries and other series. Spotify Technology SA, the world's largest music-streaming service with more than 217 million monthly active users, will distribute the podcasts to audiences across the globe, the statement said. ## Warriors apologize for minority owner's Lowry shove

3 The Golden State fan who shoved Toronto Raptors guard Kyle Lowry as he crashed into courtside seats Wednesday night is a billionaire who owns a share of the Warriors. The Warriors identified the man as Mark Stevens and issued a statement condemning his actions and confirming he won't attend any more games of the NBA Finals. "Mr. Stevens' behavior last night did not reflect the high standards that we hope to exemplify as an organization," the Warriors said in the statement. "We're extremely disappointed in his actions and, along with Mr. Stevens, offer our sincere apology to Kyle Lowry and the Toronto Raptors organization for this unfortunate misconduct. There is no place for such interaction between fans — or anyone — and players at an NBA game." In his postgame news conference, Lowry added: "He had no reason to touch me." REUTERS

Dems ask Trump to rethink Independence Day speech

4 Democrats in Congress have asked President Donald Trump to reconsider plans for a speech at the Lincoln Memorial during annual Independence Day celebrations, saying it could turn a traditionally nonpartisan event into a campaign rally. In February, Trump, a Republican, announced on Twitter that he would host an event including fireworks on the Fourth of July holiday in Washington and include "an address by your favorite President, me!" But the Democrats wrote to Trump on Thursday asking him to consider "an earlier time or alternative location for your remarks." They said they wanted to preserve the tradition of a large, apolitical gathering on Washington's National Mall, a landscaped park between the Lincoln Memorial and the U.S. Capitol. The White House did not immediately respond to a request for comment. REUTERS

"What happened should not have happened."

New York City Police Commissioner James O'Neill apologized on Thursday

Patrons of the bar fought back against the raid on June 28, 1969, leading to unprecedented demonstrations for the rights of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) people in the

NYC third-worst metro area in the nation for air pollution

According to a report by the American Lung Association, more than 141.1 million Americans live in counties where there are unhealthy levels of air pollution. To put that number into perspective, more than 4 in every 10 Americans live in an area with unhealthy air quality.

It may come as no surprise that air pollution is a huge problem in California, where cities are known for their smog. But the tri-state area is considered "industry-heavy," which puts it smack-dab in the middle of a pollution hot zone. A new report from 247wallst.com shows that New York City ranked third-worst as metro area with the most air pollution. Only Riverside, California, and Los Angeles rated worse on the list.

To identify the 25 most polluted U.S. cities, the group reviewed the metropolitan areas with the highest levels of ozone pollution, measured in days in a year when the concentration of ozone, or smog, exceeds the Environmental Protection Agency's standard from the American Lung Association's "State of the Air 2019" report. Air pollution can affect everyone from the healthiest athlete to the elderly.

No one is spared from its detrimental effects. However, some folks are more susceptible to its effects than others, and according to spartanair.com, those people include "individuals with heart disease, coronary artery disease or congestive heart failure, individuals with lung diseases such as asthma, emphysema or chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD), pregnant women, outdoor workers, older adults and the elderly, children under age 14 and athletes who exercise vigorously outdoors."

Some health risks of exposure to air pollution include cardiovascular and respiratory illness, lung damage, wheezing/coughing, chest pain, dry throat, headaches, nausea, irritation of eyes, nose, throat and more.

Gay pride is now celebrated around the world in June, with parades usually set on or around the June 28 anniversary.

Organizers expect some 4 million people to visit New York later this month for World Pride, an international gay pride celebration that will be held in New York this year to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Stonewall Uprising.

New York's annual gay pride parade, which will be bolstered by World Pride visitors, will be held on June 30. REUTERS

West Point cadet killed when military vehicle flips at training site

"God bless them all," President Trump tweeted.

One cadet from the U.S. Military Academy in West Point, New York, died and 22 cadets and soldiers were injured on Thursday when a tactical vehicle carrying them flipped over during a training mission, officials said.

The accident occurred near Camp Natural Bridge, a summer training site for cadets, the academy said. Video from a news helicopter showed the vehicle overturned with its wheels up in a heavily wooded area.

Twenty cadets and two U.S. Army soldiers were injured, West Point said in a statement. The injuries ranged from a facial abrasion to a broken arm, said Col. Brett Venable, the commander of Keller Army Community Hospital.

Officials did not say what caused the accident.

"Today was a tragic day for the West Point community and our United States Army," Lt. Gen. Darryl Williams, the superintendent of the academy, located on the Hudson River about 50 miles north of New York City, said at a news conference.

Lt. Gen. Darryl A. Williams, superintendent of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, walks to a news conference after Thursday's accident in Highland Mills.

The two U.S. Army soldiers were operating the vehicle, taking the West Point cadets through mountainous terrain on the way to a training area, Williams said.

The soldiers were in a cab and the cadets, who are seniors due to graduate in 2020, were in the bed of the vehicle under a soft canopy, said Lt. Col. Christopher Ophardt, an Army spokesman.

Officials provided no details on the cadet who died.

"So sorry to hear about the terrible accident involving our GREAT West Point Cadets," President Donald Trump said on Twitter. "We mourn the loss of life and pray for the injured. God Bless them ALL!"

Gov. Andrew Cuomo issued a statement saying the accident "is made all the more heart-wrenching as we commemorate the 75th anniversary of D-Day today, a day where we remember those who gave their lives for our country."

Last year, 16 U.S. service members died in training accidents in non-hostile environments, while 15 died in hostile action, according to figures from the Pentagon. REUTERS

DECLAW KITTY BILL

I read the article in Wednesday's Metro, "Declaw ban bill passed in NY Senate," and am in full agreement that cats should not be declawed. It is cruel, and as Seth MacFarlane pointed out, should the cat escape then its means of defense has been taken away. Of course the veterinarians are not in favor of a complete ban: It would take a source of revenue from their practice. If someone puts more importance on an inanimate object (chair, curtains, etc.) than a living creature, they should not own a cat.

While many are trying to find the next show to dig their fangs into after the end of such beloved shows like "Game of Thrones" and "Veep," many networks have been rolling out some truly bold original series to captivate a new generation of audiences. This month, AMC introduced viewers to the strange, and often-times unsettling, world of "NOS4A2" starring Zachary Quinto and Ashleigh Cummings.

Pronounced like the classic vampire film "Nosferatu," the series is an adaptation of the successful book by au-shifting Quinto, who uses ghastly prosthetics and physicality to bring the demented character to life.

While this show and its source material bring a delightfully spine-tingling kind of scare, with great performances by both Quinto and Cummings, it also brings to life a kind of hero that is rarely represented onscreen these days. Cummings plays Vic with a tremendous amount of empathy, and the writing around her character shows tremendous levels of emotion and inner turmoil under her hard exterior.

"I really enjoyed that she is three-dimensional and extremely flawed as much as she is a hero," says Cummings. "The thing that is celebrated about her are particularly feminine qualities that society has cast aside in favor of the superhero movies that we see today that are the strong action heroes, male or female. It's incredibly empowering to see women up on the screen, but the character of Vic has one other element to her which is the typically feminine quality that fuels her in conjunction with the wonderful masculine qualities."

Vic lives her life with her back against the wall, with trouble at home and at school, all while grappling with this quest she must go on to save numerous helpless children from the clutches of Manx. It's a lot to have on someone's plate, and those emotional levels were what originally drew Cummings to the character.

"What I can relate to, especially during that period of growing up, is that immensity of emotion that Vic feels," explains Cummings. "That was definitely something in my experience and I didn't have anywhere to channel that in that time, and I didn't know it was okay to feel that way and to those extremes of both the joys and sadnesses of life. There are so many people that feel in extraordinary ways and I think Vic is someone who has that depth of emotion and I think it's really interesting to see how she channels it. I think it would be valuable for people to look at it and understand that with our parenting we can really start to embrace humans like this and not be afraid of our emotions."

As Cummings got to battle it out with Quinto onscreen, she says it was a little shocking to work with him given his horrific appearance on the show.

"Zach is one of the nicest people I have ever met. He's so sweet and loving and then he turns into Charlie Manx and is terrifying!" she says with a laugh. "It's just a testament to his acting abilities and his ability to transform, with the physicality of it. Sometimes it's a bit challenging to hate him [laughs], because I have so much love for the guy. I think the prosthetics really help, because you can't see much of Zach in there. He's such an inspiration to me both personally and professionally."

MEET THE 2019 US WOMEN'S NATIONAL TEAM

The United States will begin its quest for a fourth Women's World Cup next week.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Whoever says that soccer isn't an American sport clearly doesn't pay close enough attention.

The United States Women's National Team (USWNT) heads into the 2019 FIFA Women's World Cup in France — which begins on Friday — with lofty expectations abound.

Headed by manager Jill Ellis, the Americans are the defending World Cup champions having captured their third title four years ago in Canada.

The dominant performance up north, which included a Carli Lloyd hat-trick in a 5-2 victory over Japan in the final, ended a 16-year World Cup drought that began with the magical world champions nicknamed "The '99ers."

While the Americans are still the No. 1-ranked team in the world heading into this year's tournament, Ellis has brought a versatile and in some instances, unproven side to France.

The 23-woman roster is a blend of some of the biggest names in soccer, familiar veteran faces, and some newcomers who are ready to take the world by storm.

The United States won't start their tournament until Tuesday with an opening match against Thailand in Group F play, but a packed weekend of World Cup action awaits as the hosts France get the festivities underway against South Korea.

Be sure to follow Metro throughout the 2019 FIFA Women's World Cup for coverage. But for now, take a moment to meet the United States' roster, see who Metro predicts to win the title and find a preview of the first four groups that will be in action this weekend on page 11.

Belmont Stakes preview

The final leg of horse racing's Triple Crown takes place on Saturday.

The third and final
jewel of the Triple Crown,
the Grade I, $1.5 million Belmont Stakes, is set for this Saturday at Belmont Park (6:30 p.m., NBC).
There will not be a 14th
Triple Crown champion
this year, but the "Run for the Carnations" could still carry weight toward this year's Eclipse Awards.
A field of 10, including Preakness winner WAR
OF WILL, will be put to the "Test of the Champion" going 1 1/2-miles on the main oval.

The 151st running of the Belmont Stakes will take place this Saturday in Elmont, New York.

#10 TACITUS had a
three-race win streak
snapped in the Kentucky
Derby when last seen.
He encountered only brief trouble in the "Run
for the Roses," checking behind a rival inside
the opening furlong of the race. TACITUS was two-wide on the first turn, four-wide on the second turn, produced a rally a bit further out in the lane and showed his best kick as the wire approached to grab fourth (moved up to third after the DQ of Maximum Security). The Bill Mott trainee will have the advantage of extra rest
over his chief competition, WAR OF WILL, in the Belmont Stakes.
Based on pedigree, TACI-TUS should relish to the stretchout to 1 1/2-miles.
As he did when winning
the Tampa Bay Derby

NYRABets.com/
MetroBet

Promo Code: METROBET25

and Wood Memorial,
TACITUS should lay several lengths off the pace
before making his move.
Jose Ortiz maintains the assignment.

#9 WAR OF WILL had
some highly-publicized
trouble in the Kentucky Derby, checking sharply
behind an errant Maximum Security on the far turn. He was a little chilly on the board at 6-1
in the Preakness Stakes, but it didn't matter as Tyler Gaffalione guided WAR OF WILL to a railskimming victory. His effort in the Preakness did not come from nowhere,
as he hinted at serious talent when taking the LeComte and Risen
Star Stakes at the Fair Grounds earlier this year.
WAR OF WILL has more
of a turf pedigree to him,
but does get distance
influence from both sides (by War Front out of a Sadler's Wells mare).
However, TACITUS seems to have the higher ceiling
in the speed figure department. Gaffalione will be aboard the Mark Casse trainee once more.

#7 SIR WINSTON
is unlikely to get his first win on dirt in the Belmont Stakes but has a case for a small share. A two-time winner on synthetic dirt at Woodbine,

he showed some late-running ability in spots on the Derby trail, gaining late in the Withers and Tampa Bay Derby. SIR
WINSTON offered little in the Blue Grass Stakes
after being bothered a bit on the far turn, but he bounced back to take second in the Peter Pan
Stakes over this course.
Being by Breeders' Cup
Classic winner Awesome
Again out of an Afleet
Alex (2005 Belmont Stakes winner) mare,
it's a good bet that SIR WINSTON will appreciate the Belmont distance.
Joel Rosario will get a leg-up on this WAR OF WILL stablemate.

#1 JOEVIA is worth
considering for trifecta
and superfecta players attempting to make a sizable score in the Belmont Stakes. JOEVIA is one of the few who might actually go looking for the lead in this spot. He was second in two lower-level stakes races earlier in the year before being DQ'd in the Wood Memorial for causing interference while attempting to make the lead from the far outside post. He recovered by taking Monmouth's Long Branch Stakes on May 12.
Jose Lezcano has the call.
